October 15, 2025

HOUSTON--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- Solaris Energy Infrastructure, Inc. (NYSE:SEI) ("Solaris" or the "Company") today announced that Amanda Brock has been named Co-Chief Executive Officer of the Company, effective October 16, 2025. She will serve alongside Bill Zartler, who will continue as Chairman and Co-CEO. Ms. Brock has also been appointed to the Solaris Board of Directors.

Bill Zartler, Solaris' Chairman and Co-Chief Executive Officer, commented, "Amanda has been a trusted partner for the last decade and brings a proven, complementary skill set to the office of the CEO. She has an extensive background in building and managing infrastructure, including both water and power, and in leading teams to success. These capabilities come to us at a critical time as we rapidly scale our operations for the significant growth ahead."

"I'm excited to join Solaris during a time when the demand for power is accelerating at a scope and pace that is unprecedented," said Amanda Brock. "Bill and I worked together to build what started as the private company 'Solaris Water Midstream,' which we took public as 'Aris Water Solutions,' and we recently concluded the successful sale of the business. I look forward to partnering with Bill and the strong team he has built to help lead Solaris in its continued evolution as a premier power solutions company."

About Amanda Brock

Amanda Brock has spent her career focused on the global oil and gas, power, and water sectors.
